

Health is a normal state of the human being

Body (and psyche) is created to be healthy

It has its own healing mechanisms (eg immunity, wound healing processes, fighting microorganisms, repair of malicious replications of cancer cells, etc.). Medicines usually have only the effect they expect (see homeopathy, placebo). For good health, it is necessary not to give space to any negative or other ideas - that is the principle of right positive thinking. Whoever expects health will come to this. We are what we want to be.

Our spirit regulates our body and mind and keeps them healthy, durable, vital and powerful. This state supports positive thinking. If faith is lacking in healing, actual healing is not possible. You become a healthy person thanks to your efforts. The present state of the body and the psyche is an accurate picture of contemporary thoughts, which is reflected in their current state, because every thought through the subconscious endeavors to be realized.

A mind that can not control (it produces and maintains various negative and other inappropriate thoughts) weakens or blocks these mechanisms. The idea is the beginning of everything, it is a creative act. Positive thinking produces genuinely positive fruits - it activates the creative forces of the subconscious and the energy to realize them. Who has healthy thoughts can not be sick.

Effective bilateral cooperation is essential for any effective assistance

Without mutual co-operation, the outcome of the aid is always uncertain

If someone can not help himself / herself or solve their situation, problems or condition for any reason, they can also help others who are closer to each other or have more opportunities, knowledge, experience and experience.

Relying solely on the one who grants this help to make this change or solve anything at all makes you a miracle for yourself, it is a very naive idea, illusion and self-deception, because every such change and solution takes place inside every person (and all others of the people involved), that is, at the level of his (and their) subconscious, whereby those creative subconscious forces are actively activated, which then actively and gradually bring about any positive changes.

If someone just pulls you out of money and keeps you in the illusion of the quality and amount of your help, it will not really help you in the end. Most solutions to the problem simply can not be bought somewhere while waiting, especially when these problems have arisen for a long time, often accumulated for years and matured to a situation where they have become intolerable. Without direct and active cooperation with the help provider to solve any problem, it is not possible to achieve both positive and any other changes.

Repeated personal meetings and a common solution to the problem are essential for effective help in solving any problem, especially health problems. Without this approach, the outcome can not occur if any change on the part of the person (or more stakeholders) actually occurs. Every change requires absolute trust and active cooperation between the parties and, above all, the strong will of the person to achieve this change.

Assistance is possible at a distance, but under certain specific conditions, which are always individual and definitely not an immediate solution or change, but it is always a time-consuming and long-term process whose length is directly dependent on the severity of the starting situation and the state, the length of the escalation of the problem, the depth and severity of the problem being solved, and also the level of the target state to be achieved or to be achieved.

Fast help is also possible, but it does not provide the possibility of achieving a long-term or permanent improvement of the status or complete and lasting resolution of the problem. In the case of poor, inadequate or no cooperation with the aid provider, this aid may not be effective and effective, even if maximum effort, access and interest are developed on its part.

Fast and effective problem solving is basic lack customer

Disease is not only a accident on cell levels, but also accident in energy field of sentinel node

Well running affirmative full of life beef in adequate amount is basic condition good health and immunities against disease. Detailing cleanliness to residential or working space, lack theirs cleanup as from contamination abient energies and assuring well running geoenergy and astroenergy for of these space is basic condition theirs safe enjoyment.

For problem solving of persons, animals also grew is adequate especially work with energies - bionics and bioenergetic action at distance or contingency, which is economical and effective by treat the almost all disease. Combined with entireness accession, homeopathic method and by mutual benefit cooperation be possible for acquire extremely good and fast attainment. Important he is also removal causation trouble, activated sludge treatment ain abilities break of herself and prevention.

Working with energies applicably supplementing and at the same time respects classical physic

Practical working with energies, her goings and methods applicably and be effective for complement cathedral classical physic (indicated therapy, medical help, drug regimen, prescribed drugs, habilitation and the like) and additional her boldly quickens and thus also make pleasant and cheaper.

Fast help is also possible, but it does not provide the possibility of achieving a long-term or permanent improvement of the status or complete and lasting resolution of the problem. In the case of poor, inadequate or no cooperation with the aid provider, this aid may not be effective and effective, even if maximum effort, access and interest are developed on its part.
